the general intelligence and virtue of the people that we believe any honest citizen who doubts can by a proper showing of Democratic principles be induced to follow his course and lend his assistance. Let us labor zealously to secure this result. Let us see if Louisville cannot be made to cast a solid Democratic vote.

Collected together, as the people are in the city, the need of prompt action is, perhaps, less urgent than in the country, though we know our opponents are acting and this should arouse us. All the discussions recently noticed in the public press are used by our enemies. The charges of bribery and corruption preferred against Democrats have no other aim but to injure the Democratic cause. The investigation having been made and the parties exonerated, it is the duty of Democrats to accept and defend that action. To do otherwise is to aid our enemies.

In the country more than in the city the necessity of immediate action is more necessary. The citizens cannot be easily called together, and now is the time. We hope the chairman of the county committee will call this body together and proceed to inaugurate the campaign. We suggest the appointment of precinct committees, if this has not been done already, and that those committees be urged to act. Let us see if something in the way of organization cannot be done in the country resembling the ward clubs of the city. Whatever is done let it be done quickly. Public meetings called all over the country, and State speakers invited to address them.

There are a number of independent candidates now offering, some of them as Democrats. Several of these gentlemen were induced to run, not in opposition to Democracy, but in opposition to a convention. That issue having passed, or been determined by the past election, their reason for holding on is past. We do not suppose they are actuated by the wish or expectation of getting office. We believe, therefore, that they will be induced, indeed, are now willing to withdraw their names. If we show the proper interest in the matter, if the Democrats are aroused and will appeal to these gentlemen, we are satisfied they will withdraw from the campaign. In any event, it is time to organize and begin the summer campaign. Democrats, to your posts and your duty.

Site Signs Before Us.

An immense amount of material for enthusiasm is expected from the Democratic National Convention! From all the signs of the times, as we read them in spoken and written language, even one-half of the Republicans are quietly contemplating the probability of supporting the nominees of the New York convention! There is no enthusiasm over the Radical nominations or platform. Neither give any inspiration for enthusiasm. And if any is ever got up during the whole course of the canvass, it will be because the Democracy falls in favor!

The failure of impeachment took the life out of Radicalism! That failure was its death-blow. It has been able, so far, to create no substitute for that electricity with which success would have supplied it! With success, everything apparently would have been in its hands. If failure, there is nothing left for it to go upon. The Democracy is left to a choice of men and of position which looked hopeless before the taking of the final vote upon that theme.

A platform of wisdom which will meet with almost universal acceptance is within the reach of the Democracy. And men to place upon that platform and adapted to what it ought to be, are within halting distance. It has the prestige of success. It is conceded to us by the very demoralization of the adversary. It will require no great amount of wisdom to prepare for the achievement of that success.

The Radicals Still Want Butler. That the Republican party is in a straight, no better proof could be afforded than that they want to keep Butler! We have been getting a little afraid that the Boys was trying to ruin that party and then to claim some sort of recognition for such services from the Democracy. But even such a "so-called" conservative paper as the New York Times, in the words following, kindly bids him tarry with them; for which, in the name of patriotism and decency, we return thanks. Let Mr. Butler respond to the appeal of the Times and we will breathen a sigh of relief.

We have no fear Butler will take an opportunity of sheltering his adhesion to the principles and policy of the Republican party and his support of General Grant. We see no inference unfavorable to his political orthodoxy, from his persistence in regarding the importance of the party and the country. For example, in speaking of the General, says that, "In keeping up his post mortem examinations, he is doing the Republicans, North and South, a great service. And most certainly the election of General Grant. We hope that Mr. Butler desires his party to do the same for the Democracy. The party cannot afford to follow Mr. Butler, but it is a pity to speak from the point of view of Gen. Butler, will put all these up to rest.

Can we accept? Hardly. Once upon a time a case occurred of some interest before a magistrate's court. In the course of it a woman figured much, as defendant, prosecutor and claimant of damages. The attorney said yes. How you know, asked the attorney. I know he chased her half a mile, and would a chased her furder, but for Sam Billings' bull, that scared her right back into his arms. The Democratic party is clawed in the same way, and will take the ex-Radical if Sam Billings' bull gets its Radical horns to bear.
